The first webinar highlights the immersion of culture in contemporary "smart city". The concept of "smart city" arises as a creative, pioneering way to re-configure cultural events through re-imagining the city landscape, using Information and Communication Technology (ICT) and Internet of Things (IoT) to achieve effective urban development. In particular to the pandemic period, the incorporation of culture and "smart city" functions significantly to revive and transform the cultural industry through virtual tours, preservation of old districts, and so on. Therefore, the discussion aims at illuminating how arts administrators should work towards integrating technological innovation with culture, humanities and arts, in light of this ever-changing pandemic situation.

Microwave International New Media Arts Festival 2020: SHARP CHRONICLES

Microwave International New Media Arts Festival 2020 returns this year from 30 October to 15 November. With the curatorial theme Sharp Chronicles, the festival presents a series of exhibitions, online episodes, and screenings, to explore the pursuit of truth in face of information explosion and fabrication in the everyday life.

Media art is not merely the practice of creative ideas, but also embodies the characteristics of science and technology. Therefore, not only is media art capable of circulating messages, documenting evidence, instigating research and awareness, it also opens the possibilities of tracing and pursuing truth. The curatorial theme of this year's festival begins with this intention. In the everyday life of information overload, we ride on critical discussions and navigate between the threads of media art. Through which, we allow as many possibilities as possible, and reject any certainty to weave together our "Sharp Chronicles".

The preview of the Main Exhibition takes place on 30 October at the Exhibition Hall (Low Block) of Hong Kong City Hall. The exhibition brings together works from international artists, including Lawrence Abu Hamdan (Lebanon), Forensic Architecture (UK), Don't Follow the Wind (Japan, US, Italy), Tao Ya-Lun (Taiwan), Critical Art Ensemble (US), Tactical Tech (Germany), and more. Through the interaction between art and technology, the works look into issues such as the current application of voice analysis as lie detection method and the arbitrary nature of its verdict; the investigation of tear gas usage; misinformation; environmental triage; virtual reality vs. the real world etc. Registration is required for the preview, and the Main Exhibition opens to the public from 31 October to 8 November.
